FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Late Bloomers Community Garden officially opens through City of Spring Hill partnership

SPRING HILL, Tenn. – The Late Bloomers Community Garden officially opened Saturday, May 20, in Spring Hill, with the ceremonial planting of sunflower seeds by the Kiwanis Club of Spring Hill, Thompson's Station's Builder's Club from Heritage Middle School, and the Kiwanis Summit High School Key Club. The Spring Hill Fire Department also came out to water the seeds with a fire hose!

The new community garden, created in partnership with the City of Spring Hill, is located on surplus Public Works property adjacent to the Waste Water Treatment Plant, at 3893 Mahlon Moore Road. The garden is being headed up by the Senior Adult Advocacy Council, a City committee empowering and providing resources for seniors in Spring Hill, along with in-kind services contributed by the City.

The in-kind contributions include installation of a small water and sewer line to the garden, installation of gates into the garden, initial breaking of the soil, and construction of a small access road made from donated ground asphalt.

Garden plots are available to families for $20 per year, and $5 for seniors. "Like" the Late Bloomers Community Garden FB page for details: www.facebook.com/LateBloomersCommunityGarden.

The Late Bloomers also will be partnering with Spring Hill Public Library to make forms available for plot rentals and volunteer sign-ups. The garden is greatly in need of volunteers.
