Residents' vision to guide future growth of Spring Hill

Planning Commission seeks citizens to serve on Comprehensive Plan Steering Committee

SPRING HILL, Tenn. – The Spring Hill Planning Commission is enlisting the help of citizens to guide its long-term goals on how the city is developed over the coming decades.

To establish these goals, the Planning Commission is forming a diverse steering committee made up of community members and stakeholders of all walks of life to offer input on what they would like to see in the Spring Hill Comprehensive Plan.

The Comprehensive Plan describes the community's vision and directs how the City will develop over time, how it will function in the future, the quality of life opportunities that citizens will be able to experience, and the ways to accomplish that vision. The plan guides us through land use, transportation, parks, recreation facilities, housing, utilities and more.

Since its adoption in 2011, our city has experienced significant growth and change, prompting the Planning Commission to pursue an update to the plan. The Commission's adopted scope of work includes appointing a committee to provide policy direction during the planning process.

"Our goal is to form a committee that is representative of Spring Hill's population, so we are asking our community members to be involved directly in the process," said Spring Hill City Planner Dara Sanders. "We need the perspective of the parent, the employee, the retiree, the commuter, the educator, the business owner, the community leader, and so on."

Anyone interested in serving on the Comprehensive Plan Steering Committee may submit a letter of interest, including contact information (name, address, phone number and email address); a description of your interest in participating; and a description of the perspective you bring to the process.

Send letters of interest or questions to: Dara Sanders, City Planner, 199 Town Center Parkway; P.O. Box 789; Spring Hill, TN 37174. Or contact Dara at (931) 486-2252, ext. 212 or dsanders@springhilltn.org.
